

Gratitude

18-19 Outstanding Student Awardee

Lee Ho Yang

I have learnt uncountably many things in these six years of LMC life. Among these things, my greatest harvest is that I have learnt the importance of being grateful. I will not be able to earn all of my achievements at all, without the support from others all along the way.

These six years in LMC is an important period of time that built my capacity. If I had not studied in LMC, I might be totally different. In LMC, I have found my interest – Robotics. Since Secondary One, I had joined the Design and Technology Society (D&T Society) and had been participated in various robotics competitions continuously and nearly endlessly on behalf of our school with a great pleasure. In the D&T Society, I have met a lot of friendly senior students who looked after us with utmost care, devotedly taught us all the things they learnt, and shared their valuable experience beyond the books. In addition, the teachers who led the Society also offered a good number of opportunities to me, which allowed me to discover and unleash my potentials. I would like to extend my heartfelt gratitude to all of you, who inspired me to be a better me.

Back then when I was Secondary One, I could not understand the ‘LMC sentiment’ that the senior students were talking about in their sharing. I am fortunate enough to have met teachers who have given me support and advice on both my study life and personal development, experiencing the ever-glowing ‘LMC sentiment’ deep down in my heart. Apart from the teaching in lessons, LMC teachers are sincere to every single of us and love to share lovely moments in their life, which let us understand how beautiful and interesting life could be. When we were in hardship or under stress, teachers always show their support through words and actions. I still remember that my Secondary class teacher prepared a tiny card, with a few sentences of special messages, to each of the class when we were getting ready for exams, and that had become my fuel to exert myself to persist in my study. My interest in Philosophy blossomed when I was Secondary Four. My class teacher gave me unlimited support, discussed with me in details amidst her busy work, and encouraged me to follow my aspiration. With these, I cleared the air and decided apply for Philosophy programmes for my university study. All these little moments are part of my unforgettable journey in LMC, and made me who I am.

As Isaac Newton said, “If I have seen further it is by standing on the shoulders of Giants.” Nurtured by LMC, we are all unique and outstanding. This is not solely because of ourselves, but rather because of the giants sharing their shoulders as a ground with us, and our company walking through the same journey with eager.
